

Workshop 9th November 2010

Århus

Initiate linking between Danish research and development institutions to promote opportunities for organic agriculture and demand-driven research

The objectives of this workshop are to present, discuss and analyse the opportunities and limitations of collaboration between research institutions and NGOs focusing on organic and/or agro-ecological farming. The workshop will provide a space for discussing ideas on objectives and structure of a collaboration network between research and development organisations in Denmark as well as with research institutions, development organisations and farmers internationally. The workshop will map out requirements for systems of communication and dissemination of information as well as feedback systems on lessons learnt to secure a dynamic loop of demand-driven research and implementation of efficient and innovative organic and agro-ecological farming methods

The workshop is sponsored by Danish Development Research Network (DDRN), and organised by

- Århus University
- Dan Church Aid
- Organic Denmark Global Network
- International Centre for Research in Organic Food Systems, ICROFS

Detailed program and information about venue and practicalities will be available soon.
